

NEWSLETTER N° 3, January 1999

Dear Map Friend,

As we move briskly into the New Year, we may look back upon 1998 as having given us a rather promising start for our young Circle. The Map Evening in March, our very first event, solicited a great deal of spontaneous interest and paved the way for the formal establishment of the BIMCC, which was achieved in June. October took us to a well attended tour of the City Archives in Brugge with its remarkable 16th century wall-map of the Brugse Vrije by Claeissens after Pieter Pourbus, and in December we paid tribute to Abraham Ortelius with a commemoration that put us firmly on the map, so to speak. Both the conference and the exhibition visits provided a captivating insight into the famous Antwerp cartographer's world 400 years ago; a summary follows below.

Our Membership is approaching 50 now, and the growing number of enquiries seems to confirm that we are on the right track both in respect of the programme offered and the way in which this is conducted. Particularly encouraging is the harmonious blending of disciplines we are achieving, bringing together academics, representatives of the trade and the map enthusiast (collector or not, beginner or accomplished specialist), each branch complementary to the others and visibly happy with the cross-fertilization that results.

Our future programme takes this into account; we aim at maintaining three main events per year: around February a seminar on a practical aspect of map collecting for beginners and confirmed collectors alike, in March/April we have our traditional Map Evening on a convivial note, when participants bring along a piece from their collection to talk about, and this provides an excellent opportunity for prospective members to get to know the Circle; and then in October usually a visit will take us to an exhibition or a collection with a specific map content. Every second year in November/December, a conference will be organized on a topical subject of the history of cartography, combined with an exhibition, and you might make a note of the event planned for the second half of 2000:

« From the Low Countries to the High Seas – Dutch maps from the Age of Discovery » which will also highlight the 400th anniversary of the first Dutch expedition to Japan.

Although for practical reasons we have adopted English as our working language, there is no problem to establish an individual line of communication with readers in Dutch, French or German. Those wishing to join the Circle and/or intend to participate in the one or other event announced will find a registration form attached.

Ortelius Commemoration 12th/13th
December, 1998 - a brief account
Conference « Abraham Ortelius (1527 – 1598), Mastermind of the Theatre of the World »
(Collège Saint Michel, Brussels)

In opening the Conference, BIMCC President Wulf Bodenstein welcomed the more than fifty participants of 9 different nationalities who had gathered that Saturday morning to honour one of the most outstanding persons of the 16th century: Abraham Ortelius, who was born and died in Antwerp. Whilst his most acclaimed achievement is generally considered to be the Theatrum Orbis Terrarum, largely covered in the two exhibitions visited later, the humanist and also business aspects of his life and career deserve more exposure; these together with a closer look at the figurative language prevailing during this time formed the main themes of the Conference and afforded a fascinating excursion into the cultural environment of four centuries ago.

Joost Depuydt, of the Rare Books Department, Leuven University, spoke about « Mapping Ortelius' Humanist Activities » and emphasized Ortelius' interest in, and immense knowledge of, classical antiquity, as manifest in the expert preparation of the historical maps in his atlas, the large collection of coins, the extensive correspondence with the leading figures of his time, and the numerous other works attesting to a spirited, methodical intellect. Joost also mentioned Ortelius' last publication (in 1596), a booklet on the customs and traditions of the ancient Germans, the translation of which into Dutch he had recently initiated.

Rodney Shirley, best known for his reference work The Mapping of the World 1472 – 1700, gave a talk on the « Cultural Imagery in the Title Pages of Ortelius and his Contemporaries ». The title page of Ortelius' Theatrum revealed a number of messages coded in the allegorical figures of the continents and the intriguing bust of Magellania, the personification of the southernmost part of South America; the Parergon title page was shown to reflect the classical learning in this book through the symbol for wisdom, the entwined serpents. Title pages by other authors of atlases of this period (including Saxton, De Jode, Mercator and Hondius) illustrated the large variety of symbology used to convey a notion of the mysterious, sometimes of national pride or aspiration. This under-researched theme certainly merited, Rodney pointed out, a deeper and more systematic appraisal.

Marcel van den Broecke, author, collector and map-dealer himself, presented « Ortelius as a Scientist, Collector and Merchant ». In sketching out Ortelius' artistic and scientific accomplishments and his concurrent mercantile activities he set out to resolve the apparent contradiction inherent in a « scientist/merchant » constellation, underlining that the combination of collecting, studying and trading indeed strengthened each of these activities. Marcel also exposed some interesting figures on atlases and maps produced (and remaining) relating to the Theatrum: of the ca. 7.500 atlas copies produced, amounting to about 900.000 map copies, some 40%, roughly estimated, have survived, mostly held in libraries, with a relatively smaller part in private hands.

The morning conference ended with a presentation of the latest publications on Ortelius. Among these were:

- Marcel P.R. van den Broecke (ed.), Abraham Ortelius and the First Atlas: essays commemorating the Quadricentennial of his death 1598-1998 (HES Publishers, December 1998, in English)
- Dirk Imhof (ed.), Abraham Ortelius, Cartograaf en Humanist (jointly published by the Plantin-Moretus Museum, Antwerp, and the Royal Library, Brussels, in Dutch and French)

- Hossam Elkhadem, Le Theatrum Orbis Terrarum d'Abraham Ortelius : la

naissance de l'Atlas, (published by the Royal Library, Brussels, in French and Dutch)

- Marcel P.R. van den Broecke, Ortelius Atlas Maps, (HES Publishers, 1996, in English)

In addition, Rodney Shirley displayed a representative selection of title pages and frontispieces by, inter alia, Waldseemüller, Porcacci, Ortelius, De Jode, Coignet, de Bry, van der Keere, which also attracted a great deal of interest.

Exhibition Visits

Following a very animated apéritif (sponsored by HES), a Speakers' Lunch had been arranged; two groups of participants then visited the Ortelius exhibition at the Royal Library, Brussels (open until 27th March), where Hossam Elkhadem, Curator of Maps and the exhibition organizer, performed a guided tour, commenting the very rich collection of works by Ortelius that were on display, augmented by an interesting selection of contemporary cartographical documents which put Ortelius' Atlas production in the right historical context. He subsequently invited the visitors to a special viewing of rare manuscript maps laid on in the Map Room particularly for the BIMCC.

The next morning participants were received at the Plantin-Moretus Museum in Antwerp by Dirk Imhof, Curator of Rare Books, for a guided tour of the Ortelius exhibition. Apart from the now familiar Theatrum specimens, a good collection of the Epitome (the small, oblong version) was on display, as were a number of unique manuscript registers relating to the printing of the Theatrum, and many more rarely seen documents connected with Ortelius.

In the afternoon a number of participants took the opportunity of paying a visit to the 7th International Mechelen Antique Book Fair for which the Organizer had kindly provided complimentary passes, thus completing a very interesting and stimulating week-end.

The Commemoration was honoured by the presence of a number of distinguished personalities in the history of cartography, amongst whom were Jenny Harvey (IMCoS Chairman), Mrs. Lisette Danckaert (Honorary Curator of Maps, Royal Library, Brussels), Prof. Frans Depuydt (Leuven University) and Dr. Peter van der Krogt (Utrecht University).

A video-tape of the event has been produced by Jean-Louis Renteux, and this could be made available on request ; please contact the BIMCC Secretary for details.

News from the International Map Collectors' Society (IMCoS)

17th International Symposium, Tokyo, Japan – 3rd to 6th October, 1998

The Antique Map Society of Japan had organized a three-day programme of lectures and visits for the 120 participants. The papers given included such diverse subjects as Printed City Plans of the Edo Era, A Folding Screen World Map, The Cartographic Image of Asia in the Renaissance (with a slide of a Japanese postage stamp showing Ortelius' map of Japan!), and Mt. Fuji as represented on Maps in the Late Edo Period. Among the visits was a tour of the Edo Tokyo Museum where a private exhibit of antique maps was on view, an excursion to the Science Museum outside Tokyo, and a special display of Japanese maps from a private collection. A two-day post-conference tour took the group to Kyoto and Kobe where temples, shrines and, of course, maps were to be seen. (Excerpt from the IMCoS Journal)

Regional Visit to Berlin, 17th and 18th April, 1999

This is a week-end visit taking in the newly formed Berlin State Library – Prussian Cultural Heritage, now administratively combining the two State Libraries formerly separated by the wall. These two Institutions possess one of the most important map and atlas collections in Germany. There will be ample opportunity for sight-seeing, and those interested should contact Regent Holidays, 15 John Street, Bristol, BS1 2HR, Tel. 44/117/921.17.11, who organize the event on behalf of IMCoS.

IMCoS Map Fair, London, 31st May, 1999

This is currently the biggest Fair of its kind in Europe, with over 30 exhibitors present at the Commonwealth Conference and Events Centre, Kensington High Street, London W8 (from 11.00 to 17.30 hours).

Some 50.000 maps and plans ranging from the 15th to the 20th century will be on offer; admission is free.

18th International Symposium, Istanbul, 10th to 14th October, 1999.

This year's symposium is held in conjunction with the 700th anniversary of the founding of the Ottoman Empire, the main theme being « Ottoman Cartography ». Optional pre- or post-Symposium tours (4 in all) take the participants to different parts of the Aegean coast, to Cappadocia or Gallipoli.
