By Jacques MILLE Agrégé de l'Université (Géographie)

This book privately published, will feature 350 pages and 160 illustrations.
Limited edition : 400 copies, each copy numbered and signed by the author.

La carte d'Avignon describes the author's research on nautical medieval charts and Portulans, particularly of the French Mediterranean coasts, from Italy to Spain (1st Part), and studies (2^d and 3th Parts) an exceptional nautical chart recently discovered in the Archives of Vaucluse, Avignon.

The book aims to prove that this chart, now referred to as " La carte d'Avignon ", is one of the oldest known to us from that period (along with Pisan and Cortona examples), dateable to circa 1300-1310, and that it could be the first to map the North Sea as far as Scotland and Gotland island in the Baltic Sea.

The author demonstrates that the chart's anonymous maker was a professional and that his work was both innovative and conducted in secret, more than a quarter of a century before the nautical charts of Vesconte (1311-13), Carignano and Dulcert (1330), considered until now as the first to map these regions.
